

NYLON

film
obsessed: rosario dawson

"I love to tweet facts about scary horror frogs."

Rosario Dawson might officially live in Los Angeles these days, but ever since Kids, the Manhattan native has always been synonymous with New York. Luckily she's currently back in the city for now, filming her new movie Finally Famous alongside Chris Rock. Last week the actress celebrated the "perfection" (her word, although we totally agree) of New York summertime nights at the grand opening of Watermark Bar in Lower Manhattan. We caught up with her there about her new hairstyle, OMG Facts, and other random stuff she's into right now.

Her Haircut:

"I've always wanted to cut my hair partially shaved; I think it's badass. But then again, my mom shaved her hair into a mohawk when she was 40, so she's much more badass than I am [laughing]. I first did it back in October, and I had to do two other films where they wanted it covered, so I was able to swoop it to the side. I'm doing a movie called Finally Famous with Chris Rock where I play a journalist, and luckily, I can get away with this hairstyle."

Summertime In New York:

"New York in the summer is just so special; it's total perfection. It's like after being cooped up all winter long, everyone decides to whip out all of their summer outfits as soon as it's 60 degrees out."

Flats

"One thing I love about New York summer dressing is the fact that everyone wears flats. I live in LA, and people wear either Ugg boots or high heels; in London it's sneakers or high heels. But New York it's all about sandals, flats, oxfords in the summer."

Tweeting Weird Facts

"I'm obsessed with tweeting and retweeting random stuff. I tend to not retweet the whiskey facts, although those are pretty interesting. Someone actually messaged me the other day asking if I was still doing my Twitter, because apparently my tone had changed? I've become more comfortable and don't care if I test the waters. I love to tweet facts about scary horror frogs."

Attempting To Learn Mixology

"I'm not a good mixologist, but I wish I was! My friend makes the best martinis, and one time I tried to copy her. I bought all of the fancy ingredients and tried to make them for my friends, and it was awful. It was all alcohol— just huge glasses of vodka."