

Outlet: am New York
Date: July 26-28, 2013
Page: 12

Circulation: 318,729
Impressions: 1,274,916

BUZZ

with JULIE GORDON
jgordon@am-ny.com

sightings

Michael Strahan and fiancée Nicole Murphy chatting with friends at the opening of Watermark Bar in the Financial District

Bow Wow and a few friends feasting on burgers and milkshakes at Bill's Bar & Burger in the Financial District

Spotted a celeb around town?
Email the details to Julie.Gordon@am-ny.com.

Jimmy's gal: Winnie Rose

The littlest Fallon has a name: Winnie Rose. Proud new papa Jimmy Fallon revealed the name of his daughter with wife Nancy Juvonen on Wednesday's episode of "Late Night with Jimmy Fallon."

"I'm emotionally drained. I'm a father of a beautiful baby girl. She's so cute," Fallon said. "Her name is Winnie Rose Fallon and she's so cute."

Little Winnie, who was born on Tuesday, weighs 5 pounds, 9 ounces. This is the first child for

Health puts Solange tour ON HOLD

Solange's health and family come first. The singer is canceling her upcoming European concert dates to deal with her "mental" and "physical" health, and to "provide some stability" for her family, she announced on her website Thursday.

"I am completely devastated to announce that I will be canceling my international festival dates for the summer," Solange wrote.

Solange will still play a previously scheduled gig on Monday night at an event for vitaminwater and The Fader in Brooklyn, amNewYork confirmed Thursday. This will be Solange's last show before her break.

"I wish I could put in words how much of a difficult decision this was," Solange wrote regarding the cancellation of her Europe dates.

On Thursday, the mama of 8-year-old Julez did not mention canceling her upcoming U.S. tour dates at the end of the summer, which kick off on Aug. 24 in Los Angeles.

"[B]etween moving part-time to a new city, starting my son in a new school and writing/recording my new record, I really had to make the best decision for my mental/physical health and provide some stability for my family," she said.

Meanwhile, the 27-year-old was spotted out and about earlier this week at the New York premiere of Woody Allen's "Blue Jasmine." She was photographed smiling and walking hand-in-hand with beau Alan Ferguson at the flick's after-party, held at Harlow.

"I am so soooooo sorry if I've disappointed," she said.

'I AM COMPLETELY DEVASTATED.'

— Solange

Solange

PHOTOS: GETTY

Nick Carter

Nick scares up some $$

From Backstreet Boy to ... horror flick writer and producer?!

Boy bender Nick Carter is funding an R-rated horror flick he co-wrote through the crowdsourcing website Indiegogo.com, he said Thursday.

Calling himself a "huge horror fan," Carter is looking to raise $85,000 for the movie, called "Evil Blessings."

The movie also stars Carter.

And there are perks for donating to the campaign, ranging from a role in the film and inclusion in the credits to signed CDs.

As of Thursday, more than $14,000 had been raised.

Gaga to make big comeback at VMAs

Get ready for some new sounds from Lady Gaga. The songstress, who hasn't performed since

Celebs prep for 'Super Saturday'

It'll be a "Super" weekend out east.

Kelly Ripa and Donna Karan are getting ready to host Super Saturday 16, the annual designer garage sale that benefits the Ovarian Cancer Research Fund. The event, which the public can shop on, the kiddies can head over to Camp DivaLysicious for fun and games that'll keep them occupied.

Meanwhile, on Saturday is Russell Simmons' annual Art for Life benefit, which celebrates the creative

